

I'm against this otherwise great idea because of parking. I think losing parking spaces would be deleterious to the church overall.

- ~~Since~~ Since there is a lot of elderly people in church
- when/if apts ~~is~~ ^{are} being built how do everyone walk 4 or more blocks for a year
 - the posts of building will eliminate $\frac{1}{3}$ or $\frac{1}{4}$ of parking
 - there will be less parking due to residence parking there

there is only a 2-3 month waiting period for apts.

at Missoula Manor - low income seniors - is available
I live there

What about a day-care unit?
Raising a different issue then —

Day care is so needed in Missoula

What about a two-level parking garage (1 level underground, perhaps) to accommodate both the building residents and the church?

This is a great idea! Housing is so needed.

I'd say build up as much as possible!

3 or 4 stories if feasible to make the most of the footprint + structure

I've lived in a Homeward apartment - green building is excellent idea, but make sure the materials are durable - some of the things in our apartment were not durable.

Idea: maybe the parking could be a pay-for-parking lot during the week? - could fund security for the lot + have it be in use when Holy Spirit doesn't need it.

I'd be happy to share more about my experiences with housing if you are interested

Thank you!

Idea: townhouses for ownership like Lee Garden Place?

exploration of this project.

CFF we can provide housing & to maintain some level of parking - it would nearly immoral to not move forward. Thanks to all for ~~thinking~~ thinking progressing about this Green Blackout

Why not look at how we can contribute with $ rather than land?

Parking at Hellgate is overpowering when sporting events take place. The normal school day is bad enough. Ken Ballinger

I think Bruce's idea of the Senior Citizens area is a good idea.

Parking - Zoning ??

Will a new 30 unit apt.

require 30 parking spaces -

Will Hellgate H.S. have Sunday

Parking available - -

I'd hate to see sun. visitors &

parishoners drive on by or stay home for lack of parking
